

GSM

When there is a demand for external communication over the GSM network, devices are used for notification of events in alarm systems and control systems by means of SMS, CLIP or MAIL messages. The applied solutions allow for sending information about the system status to many recipients, depending on the needs.